Dear Paul:

Just a note to send along with the ISA Panel proposal which we discussed last week. (I was out at the Agency last Monday and Tuesday, but they kept me pretty busy, so I failed to call.) I'm delighted you agreed to participate, and all of the others approached have also said "yes", so I think I've got a winning team!

Will be in touch again when I get the exact time, date, and place from ISA, but the Convention is the end of March and April 1st, so you can make preliminary plans accordingly. Look forward to seeing you again and working with you on this.

Cordially,

Carol

Panel -- Proposal:

Intelligence and U.S. Foreign Policy Formation

- A. Panel
- B. Intelligence and U.S. Foreign Policy Formation
- C. This panel will examine the role that intelligence plays -- what it should and can do, what it does or doesn't do -- in the formulation of U.S. foreign policy. Panelists drawn from the intelligence community, the private sector, and academia will discuss intelligence contributions to crisis situations, the impact of longer-range assessments, and the problems inherent in the evaluation of intelligence. The admittedly ambiguous relationship between intelligence production and dissemination, and its utilization - or non-utilization - by the policy-maker is the focus of their attention.
